FRIDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 9.

MR. EDITOR : - In the Gazette of a few days since, I observed an article, copied from a

Memphis paper, in which reference was made to the Adams family of Massachussetts. The mention of this distinguished historic namecalls up, in my opinion-political considerations, which are likely to have an important influence upon the present, and it may be, fu ture interests of this great Confederacy of The family presents a most remarkable instance, wherein great talents and distin guished qualities, have been transmitted in un impaired power, from the original progenitor-John Adams of '76-to the 3d generation-as now exhibited, in the person of John Quincy Adams of this day. By some it is even asserted that he is more than the equal of the great man of the Revolution of '76. Be this as it may, he is certainly a man of talents, energy, and persistent force of character-the standing representative of principles, which, he has, no doubt, adopted, after wise and mature deliberation. He is a rising man; and having risen, in the East, may not his star be emblematical of a brighter and better era? At all events, I am disposed to hail him as the coming man. Who knows but that he may occupy in 1873, the high position once filled, by his illustrious, great-grand-father? It is not improbable-and, if it shall be so-it will demonstrate after all that has been asserted to the contrary-that, there is still something in POTOMAC. blood.
